Washington projects win Planet Positive Awards

Four Washington projects received Metropolis Magazine Planet Positive Awards. These awards recognize the most creative projects from around the world that benefit people and planet in six categories; civic/cultural, workplace, health care, multifamily, hospitality and education. The Washington winners were: Catalyst Building, designed by Michael Green Architecture (West Regional Workplace Award); Rainier Beach Clinic, by Mahlum Architects (Northwest Regional Healthcare Award); Sitka Apartments, by Runberg Architecture Group (Northwest Regional Multifamily Award); University of Washington Life Science Building, by Perkins and Will (Northwest Regional Education Award).
